Life Sculpture

Chisel in hand stood a sculptor boy
With his marble block before him,
And his eyes lit up with a smile of joy,
As an angel-dream passed o'er him.

He carved the dream on that shapeless stone,
With many a sharp incision:
With heaven's own light the sculpture shone, —
He'd caught that angel-vision.

Children of life are we, as we stand
With our lives uncarved before us,
Waiting the hour when, at God's command,
Our life-dream shall pass o'er us.

If we carve it then on the yielding stone,
With many a sharp incision,
It's heavenly beauty shall be our own —
Our lives, that angel-vision.

Christmas Reception

SUFFIELD
ACADEMY

Woody Dinsmore

Thank you Woody for everything you have done to make our years at Merrimack College memorable. Your generous and caring heart has often touched all of us at one time or another.

Those fortunate enough to have lived in Ash were spoiled by your annual Christmas parties and Spring cookouts; not to mention all the little things along the way from hot cocoa and fluff to your warm smile.

The 1989 yearbook has been dedicated to you because some years down the road, when we reminisce our Merrimack years, Woody Dinsmore will surely put smiles on our faces.

LAWRENCE — More than 60 Merrimack College students have enrolled at Holiday Inn as the North Andover college scrambles to put finishing touches on a new apartment buidling that was not quite finished in time for the start of classes today.

"People are going to think it's a big vacation for us, but they don't realize it's a big inconvenience," said Cindy Trojan, a junior from Newburyport who is sharing a hotel room with three other women who will become her apartmentmates once the new building is finsihed.

"This is getting monotonous. When we got here, I thought this was going to be fun, but after two hours of watching 'Win, Lose or Draw' and 'Gilligan's Island,' I don't know. We could be getting settled," Joan McCole, a senior from South Boston, lamented to a group of students gathered in the hotel's lounge around nine last night

"I wish I sewed, or something," she joked.

In all 148 students, who pay $1,650 a semester for on-campus apartment living, are without places to stay until the new, 40-unit St. Ann apartments are finished, Merrimack College spokesman Casey Coburn said. That might be as early as tomorrow, she said.

Faulty fire alarms and lack of an occupancy permit, carpeting and furniture delayed the opening, Ms. Coburn said. The alarms finally passed inspection yesterday, and an occupancy permit was expected as early as this afternoon, she said.

Stone Construction Co. of Wayland was unable to finish the building in time because of poor summer weather, students were told.

Students living at the Route 114 Holiday Inn are being shuttled to the campus in vans from 7:30 a.m. to midnight, she said.

Of the 148 upper classmen signed up to live in St. Ann, 60 are commuting or staying with friends. The rest are either staying at the hotel, or staying home until next Tuesday, said senior Timothy Malloy of South Yarmouth.

"A lot of people just didn't want the hassle, so they'll miss the first three days of classes," agreed senior Pamela Butler of Woburn.

Students from outside the area, like Roberta Martin of East Chester, N.Y., were hardest hit by the delayed opening. Miss Martin was in Connecticut yesterday when she learned of it, so she dropped off most of her belongings at her grandmother's house there and will return this weekend to get them, she said.

Still, the students were taking the confusion all in stride.

"We'll all be complaining when we move into the apartments. We'll be saying, 'Remember when we were at the Holiday Inn and the maids made our beds every morning?' " said Miss McCole.

Merrimack Students Reach Out

When spring break came, a small contingent of students lead by Patty McAndrews of campus ministry, began their annual journey H.O.M.E. However this journey was not to visit Mom and Dad but, to lend a helping hand to Homeworkers Organized for More Employment. H.O.M.E. is dedicated to providing homes to the families of Maine that cannot otherwise afford them.

Merrimack students aided H.O.M.E. in their goal by logging in a good day's work. Some were lumberjacks while others were carpenters at the house sight. However students also played a more personal role as they interacted with the people who all to often are lumped into that abstract category of "the poor". The revelation was that these people were not so different, and seemed in some respects superior as the students admired the strength required to survive from day to day.

Merrimack students also had plenty of time for relaxation, admiring the beautiful aspect of Maine's wilderness. Students had the chance to make new friends both from school and H.O.M.E. which resulted in good times.

Surely all those who participated will always remember their journey with fond memories as they think to themselves "Ahh Yepp, That's Right . . ."

THE PERSON IN THE GLASS

When you get what you want in your struggle for gain
And the world makes you King for a day,
Just go to the mirror and look at yourself
And see what that reflection has to say.
It ins't your father or mother of love
Who's judgement upon you must pass;
The one who's judgement counts most in your life
Is the one staring back in the glass.
S/He's the one you must satisfy beyond all the rest
For s/he's with you right up to the end,
And you've passed your most difficult test
If the reflection in the glass is your friend.
You may be one who got a good break,
Then you think you're a wonder ful guy
But the person in the glass says you're only a fake
If you can't look him straight in the eye.
You may fool the whole world down the pathway of years
And get pats on the back as you pass,
But your final reward will be heartaches and tears
If you've cheated the one in the glass.

This poem is dedicated in memory of my friend Leo Redgate (1920-1989), who showed interest in, and gave me encouragement to produce this book. This was his favorite poem.
